A. F. of L. Favors House Wage-Hour Bill, Says Green

Declares It Is More Positive Than Senate's Version of Law

"3 REQUIREMENTS"

Universal "Wage Floor," "Hour Ceiling," Easy Administration

WASHINGTON, (AP)—President William Green said Sunday the American Federation of Labor would fight to defeat any wage-hour bill which did not contain positive minimum wage and maximum hour provisions and would insist that the bill be easy to administer.

He made known the organization's attitude after a committee of house and senate members failed again Saturday to compromise fundamental differences between measures passed by the two chambers. The committee held several similar unsuccessful sessions during the past week.

One question remained a major obstacle: Should the bill contain an arbitrary figure below which wages could not go, applicable throughout the nation to industries operating in interstate commerce, or should one industry area be permitted to pay lower wages than another. Some Southerners are holding out for a lower standard than the East and North, contending that living costs are cheaper in the South and the freight rates are unfavorable.

The house bill establishes a universal wage standard, starting at 25 cents an hour and eventually reaching 40 cents. The senate measure contemplates a 40-cent an hour minimum, effective at once, but creates a federal agency with power to make exceptions to this figure.

Green said the house bill contained the three "essential requirements" demanded by the A. F. of L., and declared there "can be no compromise" on these points.

"If the conferees decide under pressure," he added, "to substitute bad features of the senate bill for the fundamental requirements of the house bill, the American Federation of Labor will be forced to call upon its friends in congress to defeat the conference report."

Green phrased the requirements, as follows:

- 1.—The law must establish a universal floor for wages.
- 2.—It must provide a universal ceiling for hours of work.
- 3.—It must be simple in administration.

The senate bill, he continued, "is not a minimum wage and hour bill at all. It fails to establish a definite and universal floor below which wages cannot descend and it fails to set up a definite and universal ceiling above which the hours of work cannot rise. Furthermore, the Senate bill would create a new federal board with the sweeping power to regulate wages and hours with cumbersome and oppressive administrative machinery."

"The conferees appeared near a compromise Saturday until Senator Walsh (Dem., Mass.) deadlocked the proceedings by suggesting that the house bill be adopted, but with one major change. He proposed a five-year period during which the wage scale would reach its peak. The house bill fixed this limit at three years.

Southern Bloc Holds Out

The Southerners objected to Walsh's proposal because it provided no exemptions. When the committee adjourned for the week-end, it was little nearer agreement than at its first meeting.

Despite this stalemate and the expectation that a final spending-lending bill would not be written for several days, house leaders expressed confidence that congress would adjourn by Saturday night.

The joint committee, which will attempt to adjust differences between the house and senate spending-lending bills, is not expected to hold its first meeting before Thursday. Some of the house conferees will be busy the first of the week with the final deficiency appropriation bill. The house is scheduled to take up this measure Tuesday.

In Los Angeles there are five lawyers of the same name, all associated with each other in the same law firm.

Three of these lawyers are brothers of the other two, but these last two are not brothers of the other three. Now how can that be?

The entire show is free. The booths, displaying food, kitchen equipment, furniture and house dresses, are open from 8 to 12 a. m. The motion picture starts promptly at 9:30 each morning.

The cooking school will continue two more days, Tuesday and Wednesday.

"Star in My Kitchen" is a dramatic presentation of cooking and home-making instruction. Each step in the preparation of many delicious recipes to make up an entire meal will literally parade across the screen to give every person in the audience a close-up view of the whole process.

Other problems of the home—laundry, refrigeration, child feeding, and even beauty secrets—will be treated in the same original manner to provide truly profitable instruction.

But "Star in My Kitchen" is more than a modern course in home economics. It is a clever screen story produced in Hollywood and directed and filmed by the same men who turn out many of the leading motion pictures each year. The romantic plot is spiced with humor, pathos, and hospitality, and is thrilling to the very end.

It is a real experience to follow the attractive, eager young heroine as she learns the art of home-making from washing dishes to charming entertaining. Local women who are wife and mother, "chief cook and bottle washer," will learn from the labor-saving suggestions which Dedee Abot receives from the older home-makers who help her along on her career.

Husbands are bound to give this practical entertainment a five-star vote of approval, for the audience will learn from nationally-known authorities in home economics that pie is digestible when made the right way with the right ingredients.

Bad food means a bad disposition, and it is the responsibility of a modern home manager to plan and cook expertly and correctly so her family may enjoy their home life to the fullest. In the Motion Picture Cooking School, a well-cooked meal is elevated from "just a job" to an artistic achievement, requiring skill and imagination.

Not only does this picture school show any new dishes, styles, and interesting ways to serve everyday meals and party feasts, but it demonstrates how to make intelligent use of the ingenious mechanical servants that take the guess-work out of housework.

To the fun of watching expert cooks at work in a model kitchen is added the real joy of studying the practical possibilities of such fulltime servants as an electric refrigerator, a smartly-styled range, and other cooking accessories and convenient laundry equipment, designed to take the gloom out of Monday.

Questions asked by the young heroine in the picture are bound to solve many problems for more experienced house-keepers. It will all be very simple to learn, too, with close-ups of each step on the screen so the audience can peer right into the mixing bowl and see how it's really done.

Free recipe sheets containing the recipes demonstrated in the picture will be distributed daily, so that the inspiration of the new recipes can be carried home accurately.

No one interested in home problems is afforded to miss Hope Star's free Motion Picture Cooking School, continuing through Tuesday and Wednesday at Rialto theater.

French Boundary Raided 2nd Time by Spanish Planes

Premier Daladier and Military Chief Leave for Frontier

IDENTITY UNKNOWN

France Aroused, But Uncertain Which Side Made the Raids

PAIRS, France, (AP)—Premier Daladier Monday left by plane for the French-Spanish border, accompanied by General Jules DeCamp, chief of military staff, immediately after receiving word that warplanes from Spain had crossed the frontier for the second consecutive day.

Second Consecutive Day

PERPIGNAN, France, (AP)—French territory was invaded again Monday by bombing planes from Spain, but prompt warning shots from French anti-aircraft batteries sent them back across the frontier after a 10-minute flight over France.

The battery prepared to follow the warning with charged shells aimed at the squadron, but the planes immediately wheeled south.

Nine gray warplanes of "unknown nationality" swept across the Pyrenees frontier Sunday and dropped bombs on French soil about 15 miles inside the border.

One powerful bomb blasted electric power lines from the power plant at Orlu, less than three miles southeast of Ax-Les-Thermes, and another damaged track of the main Trans-Pyrenees railroad from Toulouse to Barcelona.

No deaths nor injuries were reported. Most bombs fell in open fields, shattering the Sunday morning peace of the countryside. The planes came from the direction of Spain.

In Pair, Foreign Minister Georges Bonnet ordered an immediate investigation. A foreign office spokesman said that as soon as it was determined which side of the Spanish civil war employed the squadron an energetic protest would be made.

Officials dispatched a telegram directly to Premier Edouard Daladier, asking him to take stern measures to prevent repetition of the incident.

Fox Over Land

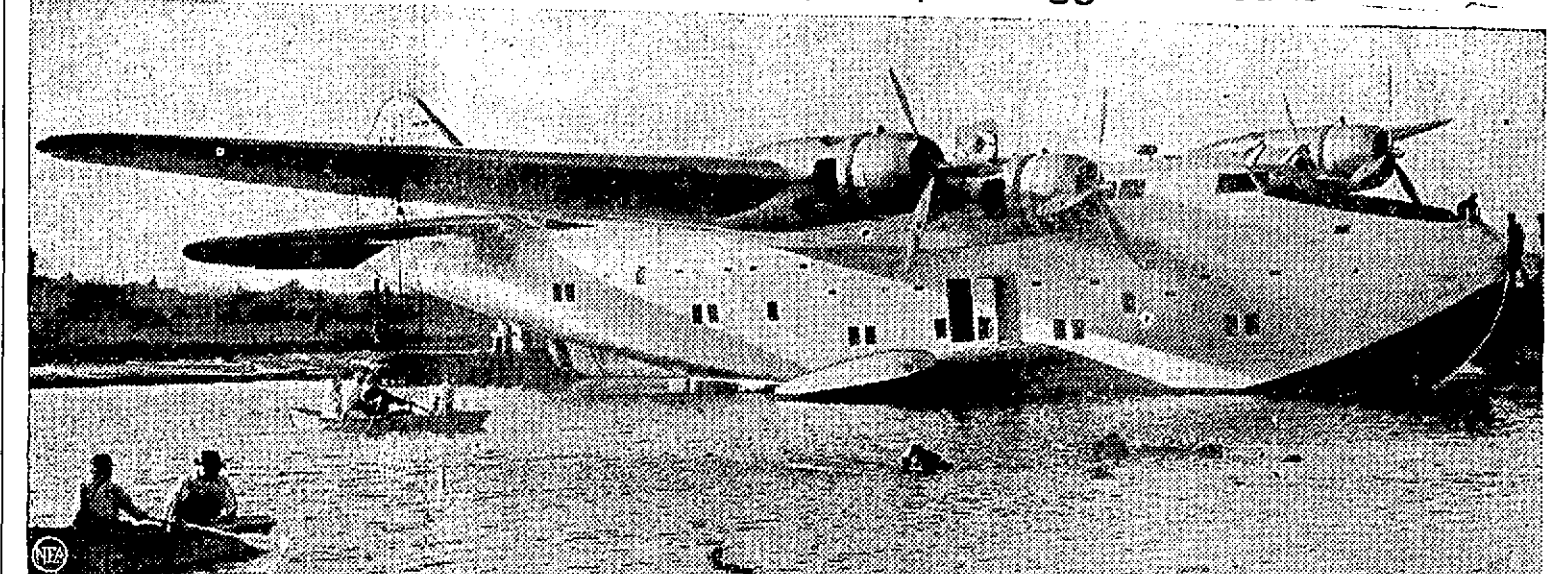

The local authorities informed Paris that a light fog overhung the Arize river valley during the attack.

"It was either a mistake because of bad flying and judgment," one official said, "or something much more serious. At present it looks like a mistake of the sort that must not happen again."

Forbid Violence by Strike Pickets

State Supreme Court Upholds Injunction at Fort Smith

LITTLE ROCK, (AP)—The Arkansas Supreme Court, in a four-to-three decision, Monday held unlawful the use of "intimidation or violence" by labor pickets.

The court affirmed an injunction against Chester Riggs and others, members of the United Brotherhood of Carpenters & Joiners of America, Local 1651 (A. F. of L.), from picketing the Tucker Duck Rubber company plants.

The difficulties which brought on the picketing injunction were settled last month with an agreement between the company and the workers.

DES MOINES, Iowa, (AP)—Unqualified support of Roosevelt policies was the major issue in Iowa's Democratic senatorial primary Monday.

Party Leaders Meet With President to Discuss Wind-Up Affairs of Current Session

WASHINGTON, (AP)—Congressional leaders discussed with President Roosevelt Monday the chances of adjourning congress this week-end, and agreed it could be done if there were an early agreement on the wage-hour bill.

Representative Rayburn, Texas, house Democratic leader, said the president was told progress had been made with the wage-hour measure by the committee of senators and representatives "drafting" the compromise bill.

Rayburn said the major bill of the session, the 300-million-dollar deficiency measure, would be reported to the house Tuesday, and probably would be passed Wednesday.

W. B. Nelson Will Seek Legislature

Washington Man Formally Announces Candidacy Today

W. B. Nelson of Washington announced in today's political announcement column of The Star that he would be a candidate for representative from Hempstead county subject to the action of the Democratic primary election August 9.

Mr. Nelson's statement follows: "I served in the legislature from Hempstead county 14 years ago. I also advocated giving relief to the farmers from the road tax which was enacted at the Martineau road law at the next session of the legislature."

"My desire now is to obtain for the farmer a larger share of the county, state and national income, and I will work to this end if elected your representative."

I have been a farmer more than 50 years and have lived in Hempstead county most of that time. I know every phase of farming from share-cropper to landlord.

"I will do my best to make you a good representative and will greatly appreciate your vote and co-operation in the coming primary," Mr. Nelson concluded.

New Light on Gangsters in Arkansas Case

ALTHOUGH no American city has yet turned wholly sinless and sat down piously to await the wholesale distribution of harps and haloes, it is nevertheless true that we don't hear nearly as much about gangsters and the underworld as we used to hear.

This is partly because the G-men and other law enforcement agencies have done some pretty effective work. Even more, however, it is simply because the gangsters and the underworld have ceased to be news. Gangs and underworlds still exist; less defiant, less cocky, perhaps, but still in business.

So any new light we can get on the way commercialized crime operates is worth getting and worth thinking about. We shan't really win the long war with gangsterism until we understand fully how and why gangsterism exists; and some valuable light on the subject is provided by a recent happening in Arkansas.

THERE the G-men arrested five men and two women on charges of harboring Alvin Karpis, who once was rated one of the nation's most energetic public enemies, back in 1935. Among those arrested were an ex-chief of police, an ex-detective chief, an ex-detective lieutenant and the former manager of the Hot Springs municipal airport.

All of which is interesting for two reasons. First, because it shows clearly that the big shot criminals do not operate on their own. Their "gangs" are not made up solely of low-browed thugs and coke-sniffing killers; they depend for their existence on the active co-operation of respectable people.

Gangsters have to move from place to place. They have to hide out from the law. And they don't slink furtively about like trembling fugitives in a moving picture. They have their friends, their "connections," who take care of them. They are able to live outside the law because supposedly decent folk help them to live that way.

SECOND, they can't operate without an understanding with the forces of law and order. Pat Roche, the famous Chicago detective once remarked raucously that a one-armed prohibition agent on a bicycle could have dried up Chicago in a week if he had really tried; and the implications of that remark are true of all gangs at all times and places. Crime flourishes when the police let it flourish—not otherwise.

So these arrests in Arkansas are worth thinking about. Rounding up the people who enabled a public enemy to operate is less spectacular work than nabbing the public enemy himself; in the long run, however, it is the most important part of the job of gang-busting.

Loose Talk—and Cruel

PEOPLE with full stomachs shouldn't make wisecracks about people with empty stomachs.

The city of Cleveland has been having a difficult time feeding its hungry. Just about a third of its people are dependent on some sort of government aid and around 85,000 are on direct relief.

Funds ran out completely, same of the hungry started a sitdown strike, in the city hall, and the state legislature, which consistently has failed to help out, sent up a committee to investigate.

Testifying before the group, a Cleveland real estate operator announced that he had offered relief clients jobs on his farm at $1 a day and board—with no takers.

When the newspapers printed this testimony, the unemployed immediately went after the work—but no jobs were "open at the time."

Hungry people are desperate people. Loose statements or jokes about their refusing jobs are not at all funny to them—or to any one else who has any sense of fair play.

The Proper Health Safeguards At A Children's Summer Camp

This is the time of the year when parents begin to get children ready for the summer camp. Camps have been developed at a tremendous rate throughout the United States, and many thousands of children take advantage of these opportunities each year.

In selecting a camp, there are certain factors which every parent must bear in mind.

Most important of all is reasonable assurance that a competent doctor is available in the vicinity of the camp, if not actually on the staff of the camp itself. Instances have been reported in the past of children who have developed meningitis, sudden attacks of acute appendicitis, or serious injuries, and the time lost in securing a physician has been so great as to affect seriously the child's future health and life.

The best camps are those in which a physician makes a call at least once each day to look over every child who may have anything in the nature of a slight injury, an illness, or any other condition demanding attention. The best camps also have available a trained nurse to take care of mild emergencies.

From the point of view of hygiene, the water supply of the camp and the disposal of sewage are most important. If there is no sewer system, the septic tanks are generally relied on for disposal of waste. The water should be from a source which has been examined by the health department of the state and found to be free from contamination. Hot camps are provided with plenty of clean water or running water. Shower baths and tub baths are also a necessity for purposes of cleanliness. The shower bath is a frequent source of widespread infection with ringworm of the feet, and the necessary steps should be taken to make certain that such hazards are eliminated.

Since milk is the most nearly perfect food and most necessary for the growing child, every camp must be assured of a milk supply from a safe source. The only safe rule under such circumstances is to have all of the milk pasteurized.

Moreover, the parents should be certain that the food in the camp is not only sufficient in amount, but also that it provides the necessary essentials in the form of leafy green vegetables, fruits, calcium-containing foods, and similar material.

Hotels, cafes, and other public places using radio sets to entertain their guests in England are required to pay a fee to the music publishers' society of that country.

Conditions Are Bad Everywhere

RAISING A FAMILY

By Olive Roberts Barton

Frustration Is a Blight or Blessing, Depending On Child's Backbone

(No. 109)
Frustration is merely a modernized word for disappointment. The synonym is "thwarting." Yet we are not always conscious of our disappointments.

They say that what we don't know doesn't hurt us, but it does. The charcoal burner who works back in the woods, who has never read a book or seen a newspaper, and knows nothing of radio or letters or trains or automobiles, still has within himself the latent desire for experience.

We speak of "frustration" in a child when his normal urges are not fulfilled, and I have shown how complex sometimes turn in on themselves when the child is starved for experience. But by and large, frustrations are not such pure poison as they are made out to be. We need outlets, all of us, but some good healthy denials are good for us, too.

We have, in recent years, been preaching a sort of "defeatist" creed that lack of complete privilege makes people crazy. But how about the fellow to whom disappointment is a prod to further energy? When he learns to try and try again, and turn his defeat into victory, isn't it worth while?

Make Defeat a Spur

The child with courage will make the most of his frustrations. The only thing needed is to preserve that courage. Mark this, please. Suggest new ideas. Keep his self-respect. Offer new opportunity.

Take Bobby. He is frightfully hurt like sticking a pin in you; it stung and things happened instantly.

WHEN he caught up with Terry he was calm; the steam had blown off. He pretended to be very angry. "Irene told you what I said about that punk, didn't she?"

Terry nodded, not looking up, walking beside him.

"Well?"

Terry looked at him under her long dark lashes. "I only stopped for a minute. We just said hello."

"Just hello? That's still one word too many for that guy."

She walked along a few steps. She looked very pathetic, and yet not ready to cry or anything of the sort. She was not ordinarily the crying kind. Surprise makes people cry, not pain. Nothing surprised her. "I don't know any boys," she said. "You won't let me talk to Tommy. Who am I going to talk to?"

Joe had no answer for that. How could you answer it? He took out a cigaret and lighted it, which was something to do with an air of deliberation and assurance. "Tommy'd be all right—if somebody else was right there watching him. Why hang around the corners? Why don't you have them come to the house?"

"They can't."

"Why not?" He knew, but he wanted her slant.

"I tried that," she said. "Twice. The boys never came again."

"Scared away?"

"Yes. My grandfather insulted them."

"How did he insult them?"

"He—he came and talked to them. He asked questions. He practically told them I was no good and he had to ask questions."

Joe shook his head to himself. You put it like that, and it sounded crazy. Yet it must be true. He said, "Kind of weak-kneed boy friends you got, ain't they? Couldn't they tell him go take a dive off the sidewalk?"

"Oh, no!" She was earnestly shocked. "You can't talk back to them. Then it would be worse."

"I don't think so. That's what they need. Somebody with nerve enough to jar them a little. Snap them out of it. They don't know Dewey got back from Manila yet. Get somebody with some backbone and let him talk them down once."

"You think so?"

Joe made a short sound indicating that he knew so. She grinned suddenly and surprisingly and looked up at him with the eager big eyes. "Suppose you do it? You're the only man I know who could put anything like that over."

Have a Look at Some of the Mail a Moving Picture Actress Receives

HOLLYWOOD.—Sonja Henie said, "Ah—so you've been reading my mail!"

"Well, somebody ought to," I suggested. "I don't suppose you have time to keep up with it, and—"

"Oh, but I do. At least, with a lot of it, that's part of our business." Anyway, there I was, reading Sonja Henie's mail. Just a representative stack of it, with all the simple picture requests sorted out and attended to by the studio's fan-mail department. Maybe you'd like to know what sort of letters a movie star receives from her constituents.

Raves Offered, Favors Asked
Topping the stack is one of the most frequent requests that screen players receive—a brisk little note asking for an interview for a high school paper. These are all declined, because actors have to have time for acting.

Here's a baby named after Miss Henie. A letter from the parents, in Great Falls, Mont., and some pictures of the youngster—Sonja Regis Muri. More children are named for Miss Henie than for any other Hollywood star.

A Canton, Ohio, high school pupil pens a long letter telling about a Latin magazine, "Auxilium Latinum," in every issue of which are written the biographies of two movie stars. An English translation of the piece about Miss Henie is included.

Next is an ecstatic note sprinkled with exclamation points and the adjective, "wonderful." It seems that this Pasadena fan has collected 610 pictures of the skater.

A doctor in a small Kansas town wants an autographed picture for his office. And next to this letter is one containing advice from a woman in Denver. She has read somewhere that Miss Henie suffers from a chronic case of cold feet. She knows, and tells, exactly what to do for them. The cure consists of hiring, as her personal physician, a certain Denver doctor.

The M. Munsons of Chicago have named their baby girl Sonja. So has a couple on a farm near Duluth. A man in Scottsdale, Ariz., sends several pictures of a local girl who bears a striking resemblance to Miss Henie. It won't do her a bit of good, though. Nobody who looks like an established star can get a job in Hollywood, except possibly as a stand-in.

Sonja, I Love You!
Here's the romance department: Neil Turner writes from Leeds, England, in scrawling print: "Dear sonja, I am, only 6ft. 11in. I think you are lovely when I, big, will you marry me."

Another juvenile infatuation is reported in a particularly well-phrased letter from the mother of a boy, who's 5. It seems that whenever he sees Miss Henie on the screen he becomes extremely excited and talks about marrying her.

A man writes a glowing commendation to the skater because she doesn't smoke. A boy in a military school in Canada asks her to drop up and go with him to the junior-senior ball.

The next envelope bears a tinted picture of Mickey Mouse and Pluto. "Searching for Miss Sonja Henie of Hollywood." And after that is another arty address—a well-executed, tinted drawing of Miss Henie tracing the word "Hollywood" in the ice.

The law plainly states that all such mail with trick addresses is fodder for because he cannot have a dog. (Every boy needs a pet, by the way.) Bobby loves Spunk, Bill's dog. Spunk gets hurt. Bobby watches the veterinary, and becomes so interested he gets books and reads up on sick animals.

Wherever there is a sick animal, or a hurt one, there is Bob with his splints and bandages, and his wisdom. He gets to be known as the community angel.

After a while his mother says he may have the shed. He begins to nurse strays. Then he finds homes for them. He is so happy in his work he has forgotten his first frustration. Just an example, of course. It can be applied in a hundred ways.

The handicap turned to a worthy channel is merely frustration licked to a frazzle. History is filled with peevish winners. It was the secret of Lincoln, and even of Washington. They could take it—and go on from there.

the dead-letter office, the idea being that postal workers have plenty to do without sitting around figuring out puzzles.

They're good-natured about it, though, and continue to relay to the studios thousands of envelopes bearing only crayon pictures and rebuses.

Only rebus Miss Henie happened to receive this day was a sequence of pictures showing a rising sun, a pipe-smoking man (evidently a German) saying "Ja," a hen and a knee.

A Book a Day

By Bruce Catton

Schuschnigg Pens His Own Story

These must be bitter days, indeed, for Kurt Schuschnigg, last chancellor of a free Austria, as he stifles under Nazi guard in the Belvedere Palace, Vienna. No man more courageously championed his country's freedom than he, and there are few more tragic figures in the world today.

The full depth of that tragedy the Chancellor reflects in his own incomparable story, "My Austria" (Alfred Knopf: $3). He began the book in 1936, it was published in Vienna late in 1937, and the dark days since are chronicled in a special introduction by Dorothy Thompson.

There is an epochal document, part autobiography, part history, tracing the three stages of postwar Austria, interpreting Austria's place on the Continent. Looking back now to the Nazi annexation of last March, when Hitler gave Schuschnigg just 60 minutes to decide the fate of a whole people, it rebuffs a hollow disillusionment.

For Schuschnigg until the last was convinced that Austria was master of her own destiny. He quotes General von Schleicher in 1933, for instance, that "the question of Hitler has been settled." In 1936, two years after the Nazi assassination of his predecessor, Engelbert Dollfuss, Schuschnigg was elated over his new agreement with Germany, guaranteeing Austria's independence. And even in January, 1938, Italy had again reaffirmed its desire to support the Austrian autonomy.

What irony this all seems now! Schuschnigg was absorbed with a passion for his Austria. Time and again he speaks of her mission—"To bring together various nationalities, their civilizations, and languages, for the purpose of achieving economic welfare." He believed Austria had a place as a second great German state.

But history has since cruelly reversed the gallant Chancellor, and today he faces trial, quite probably, for high treason. So his own protestation of faith, "My Austria," comes as an extremely timely, living book. P. G. F.

Tomorrow

What lies beyond we cannot know. Nor even what next week may hold. Age is the goal toward which we go. And time the price of growing old. Tomorrow is land unknown. Which none is privileged to see. Until from him today has flown. And one day older grown is he. All who shall tread tomorrow's way. Must live today from start to end. For on the closing of today. Tomorrow's dawn and dusk depends. Ere past the portals mortals go. Tomorrow's happenings to see. Both sage and fool, and high and low. Must one day older live to be.

THEATERS

Myrna Loy, Spencer Tracy, Clark Gable in "Test Pilot"

At the Saenger
Flying for pictures provides veteran pilots with their major thrills. Paul Mantz, co-pilot and navigator with Amelia Earhart, is authority for the statement.

He served as technical director for "Test Pilot," starring Clark Gable, Myrna Loy and Spencer Tracy, now showing at the Saenger theater.

"Men who fly," he said, "either for livelihood or pleasure, are usually imbued with a deep love of aviation. It is something instilled in them the first time they leave the ground. They realize that nothing lies between them and eternity but the ship."

"This deep-set interest demands perfection in every detail of flying equipment, flying scenes and planes used in making a movie. A technical expert must use exact care in everything pertaining to flying."

"When I took the job of advising on all aeronautical questions connected with 'Test Pilot,' my duties were clearly outlined. The responsibility for authenticity and realism in every scene in which aviation figures was laid squarely in my lap.

"One of my duties was the placement of cameras for flying sequences. Knowing the reaction of a ship to given operation, it was a simple matter to put cameras where they would pick up every detail of dangerous flying."

"For the race sequence, I was responsible for the thrills. I told Cameraman Ray June in just what position a plane would be as it dived for a pylon, straightened out for the stretch run, zoomed for a turn. Misinformation would mean wasted time."

"Louis D. Lighton, producing the picture, made my position clear. Telling me to spare no pains in making the picture authentic, he insisted that we keep within the range of the real life actualities in all our flying in the picture, which deals with the most thrilling side of aviation."

"Further, I wanted this picture to be real. Test pilots are the pioneers of the future, the men who make safe flying in years to come a possibility. Since the picture is dedicated to them, it had to be right."

At the New
Behind the release of the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer picture, "Saratoga," which opened at the New theater with Clark Gable and Jean Harlow in the starring roles, lies one of the most unusual technical tasks ever attempted in a Hollywood studio.

When the flood of letters began pouring into the M-G-M studio demanding the release of this picture, Director Jack Conway was faced with the problem of deciding a means of finishing the few uncompleted scenes without the feminine star.

The solution lay in rewriting these sequences to eliminate as far as possible the character she played, recasting scenes already filmed to conform with the new treatment; and the use of several technical devices.

Fortunately, the ending of the picture with Miss Harlow and Clark Gable had already been filmed. Miss Harlow was in all the scenes up to the next to last reel of the production. A double was used in the few rewritten scenes, but her appearances were minimized. In these instances only "long shots" were made, the double appearing with her back to the camera. In no place is her face seen. Other details, such as entering doors or running across a lawn to "tie in" with scenes already made by Miss Harlow, were used.

"Saratoga," a race-track story from the pen of Anita Loos and Robert Hopkins, deals with the romance between the daughter of a wealthy horse owner and a bookmaker. Much of the action is laid at the Saratoga racetrack. The final two reels dealing with intrigue over a horse race and a bet were rewritten so that most of the action was in the exterior production of the racetrack where "long shots" with the double could be most easily made.

Decision to release the picture was made following this release and polls conducted by eastern newspapers showing a practically unanimous desire on the part of Miss Harlow's fans for the picture.

It is not at all unusual in the theater for a young man to portray the part of an elderly, gray-haired gentleman when given the proper makeup. It is not at all unusual in the theater for a young man to portray the part of an elderly, gray-haired gentleman when given the proper makeup. But Mickey Rooney, child actor of the stage and screen, holds the record of playing grownup roles although only four years old at the time—and with the aid of nothing more than long trousers, sack coat and a derby hat.

Currently Mickey is featured as Mickey himself in the cast supporting Will Rogers in the beloved humorist's perfect picture, "The County Chairman," 20th Century-Fox's picturization of George Ade's great comedy now at the Rialto.

Revival Meeting Has Good Opening

Evangelist Peebles Begins Campaign at Church of Christ

The revival meeting that is being conducted at the Church of Christ, West Fifth and Grady streets started in a very good way. Two splendid services Sunday. The crowds were good and the interest was excellent. Every one enjoyed the fine lessons that were brought by Evangelist Peebles.

Th subject at the morning service discussed the work and service of Jesus. "Eyes that See Not and Ears that Hear Not" was the subject at the evening service. In this lesson Brother Peebles pointed out the fact that people often hear only those things that they want to hear and close their eyes and ears to everything else.

He explained this as one of the great faults in religious matters; yet he said people had a tendency to swallow down everything that their favorite preacher said without investigation. He pleaded with the people to read their Bibles and to study and search the scriptures daily to see if the things he was preaching was so, and if not, he begs your criticism.

The singing was good. Bro. Fletcher or Floyd is an excellent musician and song director. His part of the services was carried on in a very fine way. You will enjoy his leadership. Come and take part in the singing. Services begin promptly at 8 p. m. You are cordially invited and urged to attend these services.

Big Vote Is Urged in Court Election

Absentee Ballots Can Be Obtained at County Clerk's Office

Voters who expect to be out of Hempstead county Saturday were urged Monday by R. P. Bowen, secretary of Hope Chamber of Commerce, to obtain an absentee ballot and vote in the courthouse removal election, set for this Saturday.

"The ballots are at the county clerk's office and can be had on request."

"The Chamber of Commerce will be glad to send a car for you and take you to Washington so you can obtain the absentee ballot. Just call 940."

"If you know of any voter who wishes to vote in this election and will be out of town, it will be a favor to them and to the Chamber of Commerce if you advise them of this offer."

"The voter who stays away from the polls June 11 automatically votes against removal," Mr. Bowen said.

There will be a meeting of all business men at city hall Tuesday morning at 10 o'clock to discuss final preparations for the county tour and plans for getting people out to vote June 11. All business men are urged to be present.

Little Rock Drops 2 to Birmingham

Atlanta and Chattanooga
Also Lose Double-Head-ers Sunday

LITTLE ROCK, Ark.—(AP)—Birmingham twice came from behind Sunday to halt the league leading Little Rock Travelers' eight-game winning streak by taking a loosely played double-header, 8-5 and 4-2.

Little Rock collected only five safeties in the opener, four of them off George before he went out in the second after allowing two hits and walking four.

George came back as a relief pitcher to get credit for winning the nightcap. He returned to the mound in the third with one out and the bases full and allowed only three hits the rest of the way. He encountered trouble in the seventh but Blake relieved him and retired the last man.

Helmie Majeski, Baron second baseman, hit three consecutive doubles in the first. In the nightcap he tripled with two on to tie the score and then came in with the winning counter himself.

The Barons and Travelers resume their four-game series Monday night. First game: 002 300 030—8 12 3 Little Rock 130 001 000—5 5 3 George, Carson and Couch; Sharpe, Sayles, Bowers and Walters.

Jack Tinnin Wins State Golf Title

Defeats Frank Stiedle 2
Up in Finals of State
Event

LITTLE ROCK, Ark.—(AP)—Jack Tinnin of the Little Rock Country Club ended the two-year reign of hard-hitting Frank Stiedle of Helena as state amateur golf champion Sunday, coming from behind to take a two up victory on the 36th hole of the 1938 tournament final.

Stiedle, who won the championship first in 1936 when he was 21 years old by beating Tinnin at Hot Springs 3 and 2, and who defended the title by ousting Ex-Champ Steve Creekmore of Fort Smith in last year's final, had served notice in this week's play here that it would take better than par to keep him out of his third title.

The 27-year-old Tinnin filled that prescription with a two under par card of 73-67 for the day. Stiedle, after consistently sinking par during the last four days of competition, was even with perfect figures in the final with 70-72.

Although he dropped his state amateur crown Sunday afternoon, Stiedle Monday will have an opportunity to annex the state open title in an 18-hole playoff with Horace Levey, assistant professional at the Little Rock Country club. Stiedle and Levey tied in the open tournament last Thursday, turning in duplicate cards of 138 for 73 holes, each four under par.

Beauty in Hollywood Would Rather Write Than Act in Films

HOLLYWOOD—They wanted her to act, but Eleanor Harris wanted to write.

Two years out of college, she still gets offers of screen tests from movie talent scouts, but she sticks to her desk—in one of the larger studios where her name is on the scenarists' list.

Now she's being given credit along with veterans Sonya Levien, Ernest Pascal and Edwin Blum, for the screen-writing job on Stevenson's "Kidnapped."

Miss Harris herself figured, in 1935, in a "kidnaping" case. She was abducted—after being chosen queen of the annual Masque Ball at Stanford university—by students from a rival university.

Mother, Daughter Buried at St. Paul

Double Funeral Is Held for Mrs. Haselman and
Mrs. W. Robins

By WINNIE SPARKS

OZAN, Ark.—Double funeral services for Mrs. Ethel Haselman and her daughter, Mrs. Wilbur Robins, were held on the shady grounds of the St. Paul church two miles west of Ozan at 2 p. m. Friday.

The Rev. F. W. Patterson, pastor of the First Baptist church of Nashville, and the Rev. G. W. Robinson, pastor of the Ozan Methodist church, conducted the services. The Jim Taylor quartet of Hope rendered several beautiful and appropriate musical numbers.

After the Rev. Robinson read the biographical facts of the lives of the two women, the Rev. Patterson spoke consolingly to the many friends and relatives of the deceased about the value of sorrow and sympathy in one's life.

At the close of the services the bodies of both the mother and the daughter were placed side by side in one grave. The many floral offerings made a large embankment of beauty on and around the graves.

The host of friends and relatives of the deceased formed one of the largest groups that have ever attended funeral services held at the St. Paul church. The group contained visitors from all of the surrounding towns and cities.

Mrs. Haselman was formerly Mrs. Ethel Stinson Nelson. Six or seven years ago she and E. Haselman of Ozan, were married. Since her marriage to Mr. Haselman she had been an active worker in the Ozan community.

Ill health for the past year probably led to the cause of her death and that of her daughter, Mrs. Wilbur Robins. Mrs. Robins was a member of the young social groups of the towns in which she had lived and attended school. She attended the Magnolia A. & M. college at Magnolia, and the

Friction Between Italians, Spanish

Fist-Fights Occur Between
Italian and Rebel Officers

BAYONNE, France.—(AP)—High Spanish insurgent sources reported Sunday that Gen. Francisco Franco had held up urgent meeting of his military leaders following fights between insurgent and Italian officers at Malaga and Zaragoza. These sources said the insurgent and Italian officers, fighting together against government Spain, engaged in fistfights among themselves and exchanged revolver shots last Sunday, the day set aside for day-time festivities celebrating "Italian and Spanish solidarity."

Several Spanish officers were arrested. Increasing reports of bitterness against Italian and German influence in insurgent Spain were brought to Gibraltar Saturday by travelers crossing the border and by insurgent officers themselves. "The dictatorial manner if Italian officers is unbearable," said one officer. He attributed unrest in insurgent circles to discord between staff officers and the Germans and Italians.

Other arrivals at Gibraltar said that feeling had been aroused by fears among insurgent officers that the Italians and Germans intended to maintain a military hold on the country when the civil war ends.

Two of Franco's right-hand aides, Gen. Queipo de Llano and Gen. Jose Miquel, were among officers attending the meeting the generalissimo called at Burgos, capital of insurgent Spain.

Insurgents said there had been additional "brushes" between Italians and Spaniards in other cities within the insurgent territory, but that the major trouble had taken place at Zaragoza and Malaga. Franco and his officers agreed that "co-operation" between insurgents and Italy would not be changed by the incidents. They decided, however, to do their utmost to prevent recurrence in the future.

Woman Burned to Death at DeQueen

Mrs. W. O. Presley Loses
Life, Husband and Child Injured

DE QUEEN, Ark.—(AP)—Mrs. W. O. Presley, 30, wife of an automobile salesman here, was found burned fatally early Sunday when fire believed to have started from a defective flue destroyed their four-room residence.

Presley received severe burns on his feet and back. A five-year-old daughter, Marie, escaped with minor burns.

Presley said the entire dwelling appeared to be ablaze when the family awoke. He said he was unable to open a screen door and threw his daughter through a window screen bodily, jumping to safety after her.

Mrs. Presley, her husband, said rushed through the flaming rooms out a back door. She died in a hospital six hours later.

300-Egg Chickens Are Hard to Find

ST. PAUL.—(AP)—Poultry breeders searching in vain for a 300-egg strain of chickens have been told by a University Farm extension specialist that even the best breeding flocks are not speedily reaching that goal.

Even if such a strain existed, said Miss Cora Cooke, of the University of Minnesota, it would be so costly the ordinary producer could not buy stock.

"It is well known, too," she said, "that such individuals do not have offspring of such high production to a very marked degree."

Only 38 of 4,786 hens trapped under supervision of the Minnesota Poultry Improvement board produced 300 eggs.

Eggs will keep better if stored with the small ends down. A baby grand piano weighs about 450 pounds.

COURTHOUSE FALSEHOOD IS NAILED

The Politician Says "Unsafe", But the Expert Says
the Courthouse IS GOOD FOR YEARS

Read this letter from Mr. H. H. Harner, former Building Inspector of the City of Texarkana, and now a Licensed Architect of that City, which refutes absolutely the falsehoods spread over Hempstead county by court house removal advocates that the Hempstead County Court House is Unsafe and on the verge of collapse. BEWARE OF THIS STATEMENT. IT IS PUT OUT BY REMOVAL FORCES IN THEIR DESPERATION TO WIN THE ELECTION BY ANY MEANS.

Horace H. Harner—Registered Architect—Texarkana, U. S. A.

Hon. A. P. Delony, Mayor,
Town of Washington,
Washington, Arkansas.

June 4, 1938

Dear Sir:

At your request I have this date made an examination of the Hempstead County Court House at Washington, Arkansas, and have carefully checked the entire structure. My findings are that the building is in absolutely safe condition. The outer walls are very substantial. The stairways are adequate, safe and convenient, and sufficiently lighted.

On the second floor are two wood columns which are for the simple purpose of supports as is usual in such work. The roof trusses are still intact, level, plumb, and entirely secure, with no sag visible. It is usually the custom to install truss rods of steel in all wooden trusses. Rods were installed in these trusses some years back apparently for the purpose of holding the ceiling structure, BUT THESE RODS WERE NEVER NEEDED AND ARE DOING NO WORK TODAY AS THE CEILING HAS NEVER SETTLED TO WHERE ITS WEIGHT WOULD REST ON THEM. THEY ARE DOING ABSOLUTELY NO GOOD TODAY.

The inside walls and the floors are intact, level, and plumb, without any sag, and the material throughout is in as good condition today as the day it was installed. Lumber used in this building is of a quality not manufactured now, and is virtually all virgin longleaf yellow pine.

The present metal roof does not leak and is in no sag. The structure stands on solid ground and there are no chances for further improvement as to footing and foundation. Without an Act of God this building will stand and be in use for years to come.

I hope this covers the information you desire.

(SIGNED)

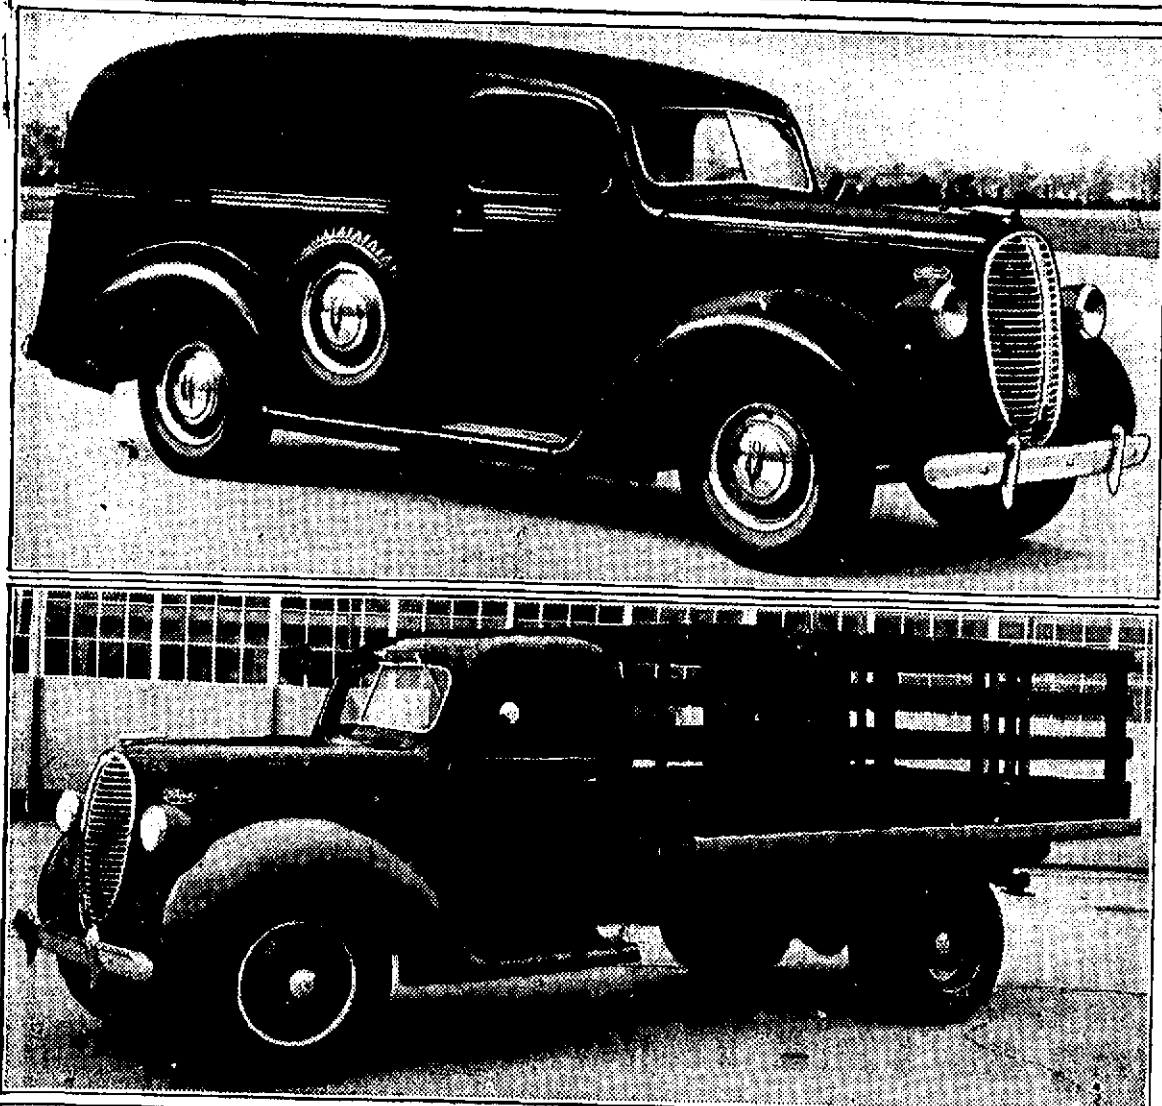

Very truly yours,
HORACE H. HARNER,
Registered Architect

Mr. John L. Wilson has been making speeches about some rods he had to put in the ceiling when he was county judge to keep the top of the court house from falling in. The architect tells you the rods are doing ABSOLUTELY NO GOOD TODAY, and if you care to climb a ladder to the attic of the court house you can see for yourself. Each rod is smaller than your finger, and Senator Wilson can have his rods back for all the good they are doing, or have ever done.

'One Tonner' In 1938 Ford Truck Line

NEWEST in the expanded line of Ford V-8 trucks and commercial cars announced for 1938 is a series of one-ton trucks on 122-inch wheelbase. Powered either with the 60 or 85 horsepower V-8 engine, the new one-ton units are designed particularly to make more widely available in truck operations the economies of the 60 horsepower engine. The one-ton panel is shown above. Pictured below is the 157-inch stake, dean of Ford V-8 trucks. The 1938 line of trucks and commercial cars are all newly-styled. They have an impressive new front and sturdy new grille, new headlamps and massive full-skirted fenders. Trucks have cable-controlled brakes which provide quicker stopping with less pedal pressure, larger front spindles, larger steering wheel, and worm-and-roller steering gear which permit easier steering.

CHATEAULIN, France.—(AP)—Four couples in the same family recently celebrated a double golden wedding anniversary and a double wedding on the same day.

Dressed in Brittany costumes and surrounded by their children and grandchildren, M. and Mme. Yves Rivolain and M. and Mme. Gouven Le Bec went back in their minds to 50 years before.

Then they stood up together, as grandparents on each side of the family, and watched two couples of their grandchildren get married.

FACTS vs. FICTION

Those Who Favor Removal Tell You

That the title is as good as that of ANY PIECE of property in Hempstead County and is GUARANTEED by the City of Hope. As proof, the Abstract was even included in the petition showing that EVERY CLAIM against it has been satisfied in FULL.

That a building levy of 1 MILL will pay the principal and interest in full and that the Quorum Court CAN and SHOULD reduce the County General levy 1 Mill.

This means that NO additional tax will be necessary. Even if the Quorum Court should not reduce the County General levy, the building levy would increase your tax LESS than 3%.

That the Government will GIVE us $67,500 and lend us the balance at 4%.

The application blanks have ALREADY BEEN SENT to Mayor Albert Graves to be filled out as soon as you decide you need a new, safe building and are willing to accept the government's offer.

That the records will NOT be moved till a permanent building can be secured and it is ready to be occupied. That NO TEMPORARY QUARTERS will be rented at the expense of the county.

The Court House Removal Committee voted UNANIMOUSLY against removal of records and renting temporary quarters and Judge Frank Rider states that it will NOT BE DONE.

That the present building is one of the WORST in the state, TOO SMALL to house the County, State and Federal agencies that serve the county, 10 miles from the center of population, off of any Main Line Railroad, or Highway, without modern conveniences, unsafe and out of date.

That we should build now while we can get a gift of $67,500 or borrow the money without interest from the Government, a saving of MORE THAN $100,000 to the PEOPLE of HEMPSTEAD COUNTY.

Those Who Oppose Removal Tell You

That Mr. R. M. LaGrone has a mortgage on it for $20,000.

Mr. LaGrone stated publicly last week that he has NOT and never has had a mortgage on this property, neither he, nor any of his associates.

That the cost of the court house will increase your tax 100%.

This is too RIDICULOUS for any INTELLIGENT person to believe. If your taxes were doubled you could pay for the new court house in ONE YEAR and there would be $100,000 left.

That it is very doubtful if the government will be willing to make such a generous offer.

They have already done it.

That the records will be moved AT ONCE and EXPENSIVE TEMPORARY QUARTERS will be rented.

This is just another sample of what you are told by the opposition.

That the present building is good enough for the people of Hempstead County.

Wait and let the people pay ALL THE COST if and when we ever get a new building.
